WICHITA MARKETS.

Receipts of Live Stock at the Union-Stock Yards during the past 24 hours-1050 Cattle, 850 Hogs. Shipments 1000 Cattle, 240 Hogs, Tuere were a great many cattle at the yards today, the most of which were Texas nd were not on the market. Quite a num ber of native cattle were on sale but com paratively few changed hands today, as the buyers and sellers could not agree on prices. What few did change hands sold at very fair figures. The market was fairly quiet and closed steady.

The Chicago market steady and prices unchanged. Medium cattle, dull saie. Kansas City market dull.

There was a small run of hogs today. The market ruled fairly steady and the demand was about the same as yesterday. Good packers ranged from $4.000;$4.07 and Mexico's sold, top prices, at $4.10 There were several car loads of late hogs on the market, principally heavies, that sold $4.05 on the late market. The market was fairly supplied with good packers and beavies and not very many light, half fat The pig supply was small and not many changed hands. The market closed a shade lower than yesterday on all grades. Kansas City market closed active and

WRATH OF THE FOREST.

WOODSTOWN'S UNAVAILING BATTLE WITH AVENGING NATURE.

How Trees Molded Into Houses and Utensils Reasserted Themselves-Bemarkable Experience of a New Frontier Town-Had to Desert Their Homes. The site was superb for building a town. They had only to clear the river bank by felling a part of the forest-of the immense virgin forest rooted there since the beginning of the world. Then, sheltered all around by wooded hills, the town would descend to the quays of a magnificent ha bor, established at the mouth of the Red river, but four miles from the sea.

As soon as the government at Washington had granted the privilege, carpenters and woodchoppers went to work. But you never saw such a forest. Clinging to the soil with all its vines, with all its roots, when they felled it at one end it sprang up again at the other, acquiring fresh youth from its wounds, and each blow of the axe brought out green bads. The streets, the town squares, barely marked out, were in vaded by vegetation. The walls grew less quickly than the trees, and as soon as raised crumbled beneath the upbeaval of the still living roots. To overcome this re-sistance that dulled the blades of the hatchets and axes they were obliged to have recourse to fire. Soon an enormous town, all in wood, like Chicago, stretched along the bank of Red river, with its broad, straight streets, numbered and glittering about its squares, its Merchants' exchange, its markets, churches, its schoolhouses, and the whole maritime train of sheds, custom house sta-tions, docks, depots and shipyards. The town of wood (Woodstown, as they called it) was speedily peopled by the plaster dryers of new places. A feverish activity was displayed in every quarter, but upon the surrounding hills commanding the crowded thoroughfares and the harbor packed with vessels a somber and menacing mass extended in a semicircle. It was the forest looking on. WOR TO WOODSTOWN. It was gazing at the insolent town that had taken from it its place on the river bank and 3,000 gigantic trees. All Woodstown was made of its life. The towering masts that swaved down in the harbor, innumerable roofs, inclined one toward the other, even to the last hut of the most distant suburb, it had furnished everything-even the instruments of toil, even the furniture, limiting its service only by the length of its branches. Hence what terrible hatred it cherished against that town of thieves.

uttered a cry of stuper. The red roofs of the public buildings, the bolfries of the churches, the floors of the houses and even the wood of the bedsteads were sprinkled with a green tint, thin as mold, filmsy as lace. Closely examined it was a quantity of microscopic bads, in which the relia of leaves could already be distinguished. This frenk of the raim amoved without causing alarm, but before evening bouquets of the furniture, upon the walls. The branches grew as they looked at them. Then Woodstown commenced to under-stand and be afraid. Nevertheless, everybody fell bravely to work with scythes, harrows and ares, and they made an immence abatis of boughs. But in vain, From hour to hour the confusion of virgin forests, amid which the twining of vines joins gigantic seplings together, invaded the streets of Woodstown. Already the insects and reptiles were pouring in. There were nests in all the corners, a great flut-ter of wings and multitudes of chattering little beaks. In a single night the gran-aries of the town were emptted by the newly hatched broods.

Vaguely, amid the newy swell of the folings, the hollow strokes of the axes and hatchets were heard, but on the fourth day all work was semitted to be impossi-ble. The grass grew too high, too thick. Climbing vines booked themselves to the arms of the woodchoppers and prevented their movements. Besides, the houses had become uninhabitable; the pieces of furniture, loaded with leaves, had lost their shupe. The cellings broke open pieced by the large of the vaccous the long spear of the lance of the puccas, the long spear of the thora trees, and in the piace of the roots spread out the immense dome of the catalpas.
